Geese of a different feather

FLOCKING TOGETHER. A white snow goose was spotted one morning last week among a flock of Canada geese in the Bethel area. The tolerant Canadas treated him as one of their own. Kelsey Sullivan, a wildlife biologist with Maine Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, said snow geese will sometimes intermingle with Canada geese flocks. Both species are currently migrating south, and the snow goose may have become separated from its own kind, and then joined up with the next set of cousins to come by. Had it been breeding season, said Sullivan, the Canada geese would likely not have been as friendly to the newcomer. Sullivan said it is uncommon, though not rare, for snow geese to be seen in Maine. But typically they are spotted in the central part of the state. Snow geese summer in the Canadian Arctic.

Discussion moves ahead on county providing joint police coverage for Bethel and Newry

By ALISON ALOISIO

Bethel and Newry selectmen decided Monday to jointly explore possible alternatives to their current police coverage.

Two Newry selectmen attended the Bethel board's meeting to hear a presentation by Oxford County Sheriff Wayne Gallant.

At the request of Bethel,

Gallant outlined a proposal to replace the Bethel Police Department with county coverage provided by deputies dedicated specifically to Bethel.

The idea has been explored in the past and rejected by townspeople, but selectmen decided in the wake of the departure of BPD Chief Alan Carr they should revisit it.

The BPD also has a high personnel turnover rate, as young officers move on to larger, better-paying departments.

In Newry, coverage is currently provided by the county as part of the routine rural patrol.

Selectmen there are interested in exploring stepped-up patrols, because of an increase in break-ins at vacation homes.

They have discussed the possibility of joining with Bethel to contract for extra protection from the county.

D.A. — No charges from Crossroads brouhaha

By MICHAEL DANIELS

It appears no charges will be filed as the result of an altercation last Thursday morning between Bethel Code Enforcement Officer Bob Folsom and developer Rick Savage.

Accounts of the encounter differ, but it did involve at least one punch being thrown, with Folsom hitting Savage in the mouth.

The affair, which arose from an argument over road standards, began at the Crossroads Diner lunch counter, spilled outside, and ended up in the hands of the Oxford County District Attorney's Office.

But Oxford County District Attorney Joe O'Connor told the Citizen Tuesday that no charges would be filed.

Only the two principals, Folsom and Savage, were willing to file statements, O'Connor said, and those statements were conflicting.

"Essentially," the district attorney said, "with a criminal charge you have to be able to prove it beyond a reasonable doubt, and when you've got two very conflicting stories the evidence just isn't there."

G'wood ordinance defeated by margin of more than 3 to 1

By MICHAEL DANIELS

A proposed new Land Management Ordinance for Greenwood drew a standing-room-only crowd last Wednesday evening — nearly three times the usual turnout for a Town Meeting.

"All the chairs were full, and they were standing two deep around the back of the room," said Town Manager Kim Sparks.

The special Town Meeting had been called to ask voters if they wished to adopt the new ordinance, a 39-page document — the result of more than five years of work by the town Planning Board and other volunteers.

If approved, the ordinance would have replaced the town's existing, three-quarters-of-a-page land-development code.

But voters instead emphatically rejected the change.

Voting by secret ballot, they defeated the Land Use Ordinance 41-137.

Minds made up

The pending fate of the ordinance was clear long before the ballots were tallied.

SAD44 facing deeper reduction in state aid

By ALISON ALOISIO

SAD44 schools will have to cut more than had been expected from the current year's budget, the district learned last week.

Since late summer, Maine school systems have been anticipating a "curtailment" in state aid as part of attempts to close Maine's revenue shortfall.

The estimated amount that SAD44 Supt. Dave Murphy has been working with is $230,000.

But figures released by the state on Friday revealed SAD44 must cut closer to $250,000, or 3.2 percent of the total state and local approved spending.

"That's the largest percent among all SADs, RSCs and CSDs," said Murphy. "The percent is the same as Portland."

State aid amounts are calculated based on the state's interpretation of property values in local towns. Because SAD44 has high property values relative to the rest of the state, it receives less aid. The curtailment figures are based partially on the same formula, and as a result, SAD44's percent reduction is larger.

Wind-farm developers field residents' questions

By ALISON ALOISIO

Topics at last week's wind tower hearing in Woodstock ranged from recreational land use around the project to the nature of the sound waves emitted by the towers' rotating blades.

About 50 people from the area attended the hearing to learn about Patriot Renewables' plan for Spruce Mountain.

An application is currently before the Planning Board.

Between nine and 11 towers would be built, generating a total of 18 to 20 megawatts of power.

Most of the towers would sit on about 1,200 acres of land owned by Patriot. Two would be located on adjacent land owned by Patriot LLC, according to Patriot.

Representatives of the company and other consultants presented a search they had done in preparation for the application. Topics included

UNLOCKING AUTISM

To the Editor:

Hello everyone. I can't believe how fast time is going by; we only have 10 months until the big day and I still have so much to do, so if there's anyone who would like to volunteer, please let me know.

The closer we get the more help we'll need.

We mailed out 300 sponsor letters. I'm hoping to hear from those businesses soon, even if you are just waiting until 2010 to help.

Please call, it would help us so we won't keep bothering you. Even if you can't sponsor gifts from your business, gift certificates would be a great help.

I would like to take the time out and say Thank You so much to those of you who have already taken time out for the cause and Unlocking Autism: Robin Zinchuk from the Chamber, you're the best coach; Jim Bennett from Norsemen Cycle for helping with running the ride; Deanna and Bruce Fowles for all your help with the sponsor letters and building stands for me for the Autism Resource Fair, you two are the bomb and I love you guys; Marie Waitman for your time with my sponsor letters and the phone calls and always being there when I need you; Brooks Bros. for your donation; The Phoenix for giving us your business for the benefit to help children with Autism.

This is a great cause and any and all help would be great. Christmas is around the corner — what a way to help others and also to help our children!

For more information, call me at 836-2055 or 936-346-1818 (cell); mail to 6 Liberty Lane, Bethel 04217; or e-mail tabaithasteward@aol.com or tabaitha.steward.me@unlockingautism.com.

THANK YOU SUMMIT HOTEL

To the Editor:

I'd like to thank the staff of the Summit Hotel at Sunday River, especially the Conference Sales Department for hosting the end-of-season Art Exhibit for the Explorations Art Program.

This ended the 19th season of this program and for most of those years The Summit Hotel has generously donated exhibition space for this event. They have always treated me like a paying customer and are very professional. I would highly recommend any event to be hosted by the Summit.

I'd also like to thank the following people for this season's generous sponsorship of students through the Scholarship Program: S. Epatha Merkerson (Lt. Van Buren on Law and Order), Stuart and Roann Twitchell, Walter and Carolyn Hatch, Bethel Animal Hospital, Jessica Frankel and Robert Hanlon, Wendy and Dick Penley, Les Otten, and Colin Penley.

Best wishes for tons of snow and a robust winter season for the Summit Hotel and Sunday River.

WHY SO UNINFORMED

To the Editor:

In a previous issue of This Week, there was an article about President Obama wanting to give Social Security people a "charitable" non-taxable amount of $250.

However, at the same time, the military got a 3.4 percent raise, which even our elected people in Washington seemed to not know about. How do I know? I asked Snowe, Collins, Mi-chaud and wanted a reply in writing — to date, no word.

I don't consider Social Security an entitlement. I invested in it when I worked. My paychecks are proof of that. However, I consider "TARP" an entitlement.

The Wall Street Journal, several months ago, briefly stated that the military were getting a 3.4 percent raise. Why is the media so uninformed?

ISSUES ARE CLOSED FOR US

To the Editor:

Regarding the recent incident involving the Code Enforcement Officer and our company, we have decided that spending time addressing these issues is taking us away from the focus of our company which is to build quality homes and subdivisions.

We have been assured by the Town Manager, whom we have great respect for, that all matters relating to enforcement of the town's ordinances will be fair and equal. We will fully support his decision regarding disciplinary actions against the Code Enforcement Officer.

On another note, we would like to congratulate the residents of Greenwood on their recent vote to defeat the land use ordinances that attempted to take major property rights away from hard-working landowners.

We consider both of these issues closed and will not be discussing them publicly.

EXCELLENT LETTER

To the Editor:

I am moved to thank Diane Farnum for her excellent letter (Bethel Citizen 11/19).

That she actively supports her daughter who is gay is commendable.

That she was willing to go out in public and fight for her daughter's civil rights is even more commendable.

That she had to endure rude behavior and cruel threats reveals an unfortunate portrait of the "land of the free and home of the brave."

I agree with Mrs. Farnum, the law will finally pass in Maine. The lies and misunderstanding will be overcome by truth, acceptance and respect.

Jesus did say: "Let he who is without sin cast the first stone." I hope the day will soon arrive when people can disagree without being so disagreeable. That they will accept and respect differences in life styles and in religion.

First do no harm, and put an end to casting stones. "We are defined by the way we treat ourselves and by the way we treat other people."

WITH MUTUAL GRACE AND PATIENCE

To the Editor:

As a formerly enthusiastic Christian/Bible basher I recognized many of my own old arguments in Pat Stewart's Oct. 22 letter. Upon much reflection, I have been convicted of my need to reply.

To begin with, I feel that even though customs, technologies and empirical knowledge all change with time, human nature and instincts do not; if anything, they simply run in cycles. Therefore, within this context, the Scriptures always have much to show and tell us and are thus still very relevant — albeit in the light of new customs, etc. This is where careful analysis to understand what group the original passage was addressed to, their customs, problems and situation and how the original language was used (proper exegesis, in pastor-speak) is imperative. In the interest of brevity, I will address the account of David and Jonathan only, but sincerely invite private dialogue on any of the other points raised.

King Saul (Jonathan's father) was a very rough, rash and unstable man. The prophet Samuel had been instructed to anoint David, a shepherd boy (don't miss that statement in terms of societal classes), as the next king, but Saul's pride refused to bow to the declaration of Samuel, and when he learned of David's anointing and witnessed his growing favor with the populace, was driven by jealousy to kill David and preserve the inheritance of his son, Jonathan. In the meantime, Jonathan had witnessed David killing Goliath and the two had become fast friends. This put Jonathan in a very difficult situation. From the passages that were referenced in I Samuel 18 verse 3, it reads "and he loved him as himself" (Jonathan towards David). The Hebrew verb used here for 'loved' is "ahab" (long 'a' sound on the first 'a') and it is used 215 times in the Old Testament. Among its meanings are friend, ally, familial love, covenant love, and lovers. Of the 215 occurrences, "lover" is conveyed only 12 times, while the other forms that describe brotherly love make up the other 203. Because the overwhelming use of the verb is non-sexual, the burden of proof is upon the alternate use and for that, we must rely on overall context. We must be careful not to impose 21st century bias and innuendo upon a 3,000 year-old near-east culture when the strong majority of word applications point in a different direction.

Regarding the disrobing, the account tells us that Jonathan gave David his robe, tunic, sword, bow and belt. It does not say that he was naked. Proper context reveals that Jonathan was a warrior-trained prince, but he had to choose to whom he would give his allegiance: his father the king or his friend the shepherd. Through custom, by giving David his royal robe and tunic and his sword, bow and belt, he willingly relinquished all claims to his own kingship; the royal prince humbly submitted to the lowly shepherd. The very heir to the crown would not stand in the way, in fact he submitted to David's future authority over him. This is how strong and true their friendship had become.

As far as the kissing is concerned from Chapter 20, the Hebrew word here for 'kiss' is "nasag" which overwhelmingly is used (30 times) for familial affection, homage, submission or good-by. In this scene, Jonathan had risked his own life to find David and tell him not to come back to the king's court, as his father Saul would assassinate him at a festival. David knew what Jonathan had risked for him; they both knew that David would have to flee as Saul would hunt him down after the celebration and that they may never see each other again. Two of the closest of friends were tearfully paying homage to each other. Tragic scenes are often accompanied by unbridled outpourings of affection. Careful and thoughtful study shows this entire account to be a powerful example of genuine brotherly love that transcends family, cultural status and personal risk/gain for the sake of what is right. I find its message most relevant in a culture obsessed with power, greed, instant gratification, self-absorption and status. Incidentally, Jonathan died loyally in battle next to his father; he was never his father's enemy, just David's dearest and truest friend.

In the spirit of honest discussion, I invite those with Pat Stewart's views on these or any other points to call me here at the Alliance Church. I would be honored to exchange dialogue in a discharged atmosphere with a fresh pot of coffee and generous portions of mutual grace and patience.

PILOTS NEED LOW-LEVEL TRAINING

To the Editor:

I have two principle points to make relative to the opposition to allowing National Guard fighters practicing intercept training at altitudes as low as 500 feet above ground level (AGL) in the Condor I and II training area. The first relates to the value of realistic training. The after action report on the 9/11, 2001 disasters in New York, the Pentagon and the crash of United flight 93 (I think it was) in Pennsylvania revealed that two F-15 aircraft on air defense alert took off from Otis Air Base on Cape Cod and were vectored out over the Atlantic Ocean! Neither FAA nor military ground controllers knew what to do with the F-15's. Why? Because there was no training of either aircrews or ground controllers for this sort of incident. Nobody knew then who could order fighters to shoot down a commercial airliner nor what conditions might justify such action.

As a corollary to this factor, there is already a gradual reduction of fighter aircraft being placed on ground alert for two reasons; F-15 and F-16 aircraft are being taken out of service at an increasing rate because these aircraft are reaching the end of their designed lifetimes due to heavy use in three theater wars (the first Gulf War, Afghanistan and the Iraq War). There is also a growing feeling among some Obama Administration officials that we no longer need air defense fighters on alert because of the effective screening of airline passengers and the greater need to spend the money on other defense priorities.

Everyone should know that there are many potential enemies who will be tempted to attack once they realize our air defenses are severely weakened by either of these factors. There are numerous sources of aircraft besides airlines that potential terrorists might use.

Besides the need for training of both aircrews and ground controllers, the argument that occasional low-level flights in our area will harm the economy of the area is fallacious. The idea that tourists will stay away or that potential homebuyers will decide not to buy in this area because of an occasional loud aircraft doesn't make sense. People from New Jersey, Massachusetts or any other metropolitan area are bombarded by noises of all types on a daily basis, many of them approaching the level of noisy jets that only occasionally visit this area. I have never heard of a tourist going home or staying away because of an occasional loud aircraft.

And the frequency of air intercept training will be much less than the previously occurring training on the low-level route that has existed in the western Maine area for many years. This is because there are only two ANG units with an air defense mission in the entire New England area: Otis ANG Base at Cape Cod and a unit at Burlington, Vt. With two aircraft on alert at each base there are only limited numbers of aircraft and pilots remaining available for intercept training at any one time. When you add in the concept of operations for such training that has the intercept aircraft at medium to high altitude during the vast majority of time on each mission, the probability of a low pass over any given point in the Condor areas is very low for any given day. The probabilities are that any given spot on the ground is unlikely to see/hear a loud low pass more than a handful of times in an entire month!

I am reminded of the hearings in the area a few years ago when a few businesses catering to tourists were alarmed that moose hunting here during the foliage viewing season would offend tourists who might see moose guts beside the road. In actuality, tourists flock to some of the moose check-in points (especially Greenville) because they want to see moose up close! A lot of folks like to see low-flying jets too!

Let them train!

HERE THEY GO AGAIN

To the Editor:

In the '60s the same problem existed in western Maine.

Now it is repeated.

Then, telephone calls to Maine A.N.G. hooked me up with the Massachusetts Guard, who were not interested in my complaint. Several Guard officers made several visits over several weeks, stressing the patriotic need; no solution offered. Our concerns were ignored; our patriotism questioned.

Finally, I wrote my Congressional voices, among them, of course, Sen. Snowe and Sen. Mitchell. Like magic, the flyovers ceased in less than two weeks. No more "booms"; no more surprising and ear-splitting traffic overhead, with few "cowboys" playing with 300 feet above tree and chimney.

At a time when the state of Maine is making valiant attempts to attract tourists and businesses, we are, once again, held hostage to the "booms" and screeches over golfers, fishermen, hikers, Band B's, hotels, children's playgrounds, cattle and wildlife, town and village events.

I suggest that Massachusetts, which is wealthier than we, send their planes to the western Massachusetts Berkshires, try Tanglewood, but leave Maine alone. B'gone, b'gorry.

A TRIBUTE TO JOHN AND TO OUR COMMUNITY

To the Editor:

I would like to thank the Bethel area community for all they did to help organize such an inspiring celebration of life for my husband John. I had no idea how to find a fitting way for everyone to come together and say goodbye, but I knew John was not the kind of guy for a traditional send off.

I am grateful beyond words to those people who jumped in to help, and called offering suggestions until, together, we had figured out what turned out to be the most perfect way. Thank you to our Sunday River Perfect Turn family, the Matterhorn Ski Bar, the Good Food Store, and all of the other amazing friends who gave their time and their love to make it happen.

For me, it turned out to not only be a tribute to a wonderful man who will be truly missed, but also to the community of which he was a part.

I would also like to add a sincere apology to those people who missed the celebration because of my error published in the obituary as Sunday instead of Saturday. I am sure that John's spirit will linger on at the Matterhorn for some time, so you could stop by and raise a mug in his honor. If you are there just after the mountain closes, you will probably not be alone.

MHS SKI FILM THANKS

To the Editor:

On behalf of the over 800 participants, volunteers and staff of Maine Handicapped Skiing, we would like to extend our sincerest gratitude to all of the organizers, hosts, donors and attendees of Saturday night's film screening at the Phoenix.

Over 100 skiers and riders gathered for the screening of three local amateur ski films to benefit local nonprofit Maine Handicapped Skiing.

The films were produced by several native Mainers and frequent skiers at Sunday River and Sugarloaf: Tanya Haller, Walter Haller and Joel Osgood. In all, $1,075 was raised to support Maine Handicapped Skiing's adaptive recreation programs for children and adults with physical disabilities.

Tanya Haller organized the event and enlisted the support of the Phoenix, and several other Sunday River community members volunteered to solicit other donations, work the door and sell raffle tickets. The Phoenix provided the use of the upstairs lounge, screening equipment and free appetizers for attendees, as well as donating proceeds from the sale of Mug Club memberships that evening. Many local businesses and individuals contributed raffle prizes for the event including retail shops Jack Frost Sports and Pinnacle Sports, restaurants Liam's and 22 Broad Street, and local jewelry designers Ellen Parsons and Ann Pernice. Additional prizes and support were provided by Chris and Anne Lento.

Please join us in thanking them all for their generous support of MHS programs at Sunday River and beyond.

Man dies when tractor-trailer rolls

WEST PARIS—A Naples man was killed Monday evening on Route 26 when a tractor-trailer loaded with wood chips rolled onto his pickup truck, setting it on fire, Maine State Police Trooper Ron Turnick said. He identified the man as 60-year-old Richard Ray of 12 Casseltop Acres in Naples. He said Ray was alone in his 1998 Chevrolet as it headed south near 118 Bethel Road about 5 p.m. Driving the northbound 18-wheeler was Warren Dunning, 41, of 11 Nova St. in Dixfield, Turnick said. He was also traveling alone in a 2007 Volvo registered to Midwest Price Co. of West Paris. The third driver was identified as Tricia Beretz, 36, of 59 Vinal Ave., Somerville, Mass., traveling south in her 2008 Acura sedan after a day of skiing at Sunday River in Newry, the trooper said. The investigator said Beretz told him she dozed off and drifted into the oncoming lane. She was feeling "extremely tired and thought that she would drive to the next gas station and get a coffee," he said. "That's the last thought she had before she dozed off. And she woke up and was headed toward the rig and attempted to swerve into her lane. Her car got clipped by the tractor-trailer and sent her spinning," he said. Dunning then lost control of the rig, Turnick said, and drifted left into the oncoming pickup and it hit the trailer," he said. Ray died on impact.

Merrill Hill is a 460 acre parcel that runs along Sunday River to the peak of Merrill Hill. The founders' goal is to protect the natural wonders that drew us here in the first place, with protective covenants, architectural guidelines and underground utilities. Inspired by local gemologists, the streets were named for gemstones found in this mineral rich area.

Merrill Hill is flanked by Sunday River's golf course, ski slopes and the Jordan Grand Hotel. Situated in a pristine forest setting each home-site is a one of a kind trophy property, in a gated neighborhood. Glade trails exist in the 100 acre private recreation and fitness area, and as more homes are built a pavilion is planned for homeowners.

Michael Bosse (left in photo) of Mountain Homes of the West, built in Vail, Colorado for fifteen years. He now shares the Merrill Hill vision of quality and style, with this new home nearing completion, a mixed media-design blending with natural elements, innovative technology, green building and materials from the site. Interior finishes are coming together on this home. Stop in and meet the builder, pick out a homesite and spend Thanksgiving with your family on Merrill Hill next year. Take advantage of the end of year sales incentives.

Merrill Hill Estates sets the standards for Natural Elegance in the Heart of Sunday River with an environment so precious the streets are named for gemstones found in the region. only. He said under a contract with Bethel, three deputies would be assigned to the town at an annual cost of $295,000. The town would be covered 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Current BPD coverage costs $313,000 for single-officer, round-the-clock service. The Sheriff's Department and State Police provide backup coverage when needed.

Gallant said his cost would remain the same for three years, then increase at about 3 percent a year.

All the deputies would be certified justice academy graduates. The county's three detectives and administrative staff would also be available.

Not 24/7 patrol

Darren Tripp, director of security at Sunday River Ski Resort and former police chief in Bethel, said a distinction should be made between 24/7 coverage and 24/7 patrol.

He noted that a BPD officer is currently in Bethel 24/7 (except when occasionally asked to assist other law enforcement in nearby towns).

But with a plan for three deputies assigned to patrol a total of 120 hours a week, he wanted details of how the remaining 48 hours of the week would be covered.

Gallant said that during those hours—usually relatively quiet periods—another county deputy assigned to the general area would be available for coverage.

During those times, he said, "the deputy would not be right here."

(Gallant said later that during those time periods he, Chief Deputy Dane Tripp and three detectives are often out patrolling in the county, providing additional overall coverage.)

Selectmen Dennis Doyon asked about a county office in Bethel, saying he thought it was important for residents to see "a presence rather than just a car."

Gallant said there would be an office. He said his department has been negotiating with the U.S. Forest Service for space in its former office building for deputies to use, in connection with their patrols of White Mountain National Forest territory.

But other options would include the present BPD office on Main Street or possibly the Bethel Rescue station, he said.

Newry

Broadening the discussion to include protection in Newry, selectman Steve Wight said, "It's exciting to think about a regional opportunity."

He said that with the large influx of skiers to Newry each winter, "what happens in Bethel is brought here because of what happens in Newry."

He asked if there could be further cost savings through a joint contract with the two towns.

Gallant said he could research figures, and if Newry were included, another deputy would likely be hired.

Wight said that his town only has 10 miles of roads to patrol, but the second-home break-ins are becoming more of a problem.

Members of Bethel's Budget Committee also attended the meeting.

Member Ron Savage said that changing to county coverage would provide continuity.

The BPD, he said, "has good people, but we have trouble with stability."

And joining together with Newry for law enforcement, said Savage, is in his opinion "a no brainer."

"The logical question is, 'is Newry willing to come in to make it reasonable?'" he said.

Bethel Fire Chief Mike Jordrey said the possibilities deserve further study.

"I think we ought to explore all our options, so we can put it to bed one way or the other," he said.

The two boards decided that Newry officials should first meet with Gallant to discuss their coverage needs, and then hold another joint meeting soon after.

Bethel chairman Stan Howe said he hoped the two boards could get together by mid-December.

Doar's view

Town Manager Jim Doar said Tuesday that he "would fully support contracting with the Sheriff's Office. I think it's an improved service for less money."

As for the personnel turnover in the BPD, "we're hemorrhaging police officers," he said.

One justice academy graduate is expected to leave shortly for a larger department. That would leave only Sgt. S.R. White as an academy graduate, Doar said.

He also said he had put out information regarding a possible interim chief's position in Bethel on a police-chiefs' website, and had a few inquiries.

But, said Doar, once those contacting him learned the salary, minimal benefits, and that the position entails patrolling, the potential applicants lost interest.

G'Wood

don't imagine there are too many who have come tonight who have not already made up their minds," said Woodstock Town Manager Vern Maxfield, who moderated the meeting.

Maxfield suggested one person each from the pro and con camps lay out the basic rationale for their positions, then the floor would be open for questions and comments.

Planning Board member Jim St. Germain led off, for the 'yes' side.

The ordinance, he said, "has to do with what this town is going to become in 10, 20 years."

"All we're asking for is some respect for the neighbors," he said. "If you want to build, you can build. Just care for what the neighbors have — this is a community."

Regrettably, he said, some basic rules are necessary, "because there are a lot of people who just don't care. All they're looking for is to maximize their investment."

But Albert Curtis Sr., speaking for ordinance opponents, said he owned land that had been passed to him from his father, and if he himself wished to pass that land on to his children and grandchildren, they would find it difficult, if not impossible, to build on, since the land would be classified under the new ordinance as ridgeline.

And, he noted, "when Greenwood was settled years ago, they came up over Patch Mountain and went right on through to Bethel — and that was ridgeline development."

Striking a similar line of argument, Gordon Morgan pointed to an existing town ordinance proponents often cite as an example of regulatory success — Greenwood's (state-mandated) Shoreland Zoning Ordinance.

"Probably 90 percent (I can't say for sure) of the camps on the lakes in the town of Greenwood would not be able to be built today if the ordinance had been in place in the 1940s," he said.

"And I find that most of the 'yes' people are the people who have their little place on the ponds and lakes."

For an over-packed Town Meeting where opinions ran strong, Wednesday's gathering was short and to the point.

A half hour into the proceeding a motion was made to move the question.

The motion passed unopposed.

Twenty minutes later the votes had been cast, tallied, and the ordinance was defeated.

Two proposed amendments to the ordinance, establishing overlay districts for the Greenwood Road and ridgelines, were then summarily dispatched by shows of hands.

Fight

"We don't decide whether anybody's guilty or not, but we have to see that there's enough evidence that a jury could find somebody guilty beyond a reasonable doubt," Bethel Town Manager Jim Doar also said he did not anticipate any disciplinary action being taken against Folsom.

Thursday's encounter was not the first between Savage and Bethel officials.

In 2007 he was charged with criminal threatening following a heated argument with then Town Manager Scott Cole in the Bethel Town Office.

The case was filed and Savage ordered to have no contact with Cole, outside of public meetings, for a year.

A letter regarding the matter from Rick Savage and his brother Ron appears on Page 2 of this week's edition.

Cuts

In anticipation of the curtailment, a district-wide spending freeze has been in place since September.

"We haven't been buying anything other than for emergencies," Murphy said.

"The number of purchase orders is dramatically fewer."

Over the next couple of weeks, he said, "I will be looking at all options available to us in the coming months."

Continued conversations will be taking place with our administrative team and with the [School] Board on Dec. 14.

"Although I am hopeful that we can avoid layoffs, that has yet to be determined."

And, he said, further cuts from the state are not out of the question.

"Whether there will be additional reductions remains to be seen," he said.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Any time is a good time to give thanks for the good things we have in our lives, but most of us don't think to do it. Fortunately Thanksgiving Day is set aside for that very purpose.

At the top of my list of things for which I am thankful is my family. We have made it through another year in relatively good health and without any major setbacks.

There have been a few ups and downs just as there are in everyone's life and the financial crunch with some family members being laid off has certainly been tough.

But all of us have a roof over our heads and none of us are going hungry, though some of us could certainly do with a little less food from time to time.

As a family we are there for each other with support through the tough times and we are there to rejoice with each other during the good times.

Even if I had nothing else in my life to be thankful for, the love and closeness of my family is simply enough.

However, I do have a lot of other blessing to give thanks for. I have oil in my oil tank and gas in my gas tank and though neither will last very long I'm thankful that at least for today I'm warm and I can go wherever I may need to go.

And right now all the appliances in my house are working and my car is running just fine. Though that can all change in a heartbeat and probably will just before Christmas, for today I'm very thankful.

Any time is a good time to give thanks ...

I'm thankful that I am not Mrs. Bernie Madoff. Can you imagine what it must be like to have your husband go to jail for the rest of his life and you lose the unbelievable life of luxury you have been living?

I don't know Mrs. Madoff or how much knowledge of her husband's shenanigans she had, but I suspect that she was an innocent pawn in her husband's terrible crimes.

Thinking about her makes me very thankful for the husband I have. He has his faults, boy, I could write a book on them, but he is a good and honest man and for that I am very grateful. Plus he loves me and that's a really big point in his favor.

I'm thankful that when I get up in the morning my aches and pains will usually work themselves out after a while. If I drop something on the floor first thing in the morning I'm eventually able to pick it up.

I'm really thankful for every kiss and hug I get from my grandsons. They are reaching an age when hugging their grandmother just isn't cool, but so far they seem content to be a little uncool.

On the occasions when I have to pick the 10 year-old up at school he will still come running with a big smile and a big hug. The 13 year-olds don't exactly come running, but they still do the hug no matter who of their friends is around.

When I think about what has taken place in my life since last Thanksgiving I realize it has been pretty uneventful. I didn't win the lottery. I didn't miraculously stop aging. I didn't even lose the weight I vowed I would.

I also didn't have surgery, suffer any broken bones or even get sick other than a minor cold. All is reasonably well with those I love and we will be able to gather once again to feast in celebration of our good fortune.

A lot of little things add up to be enormous blessings and I sincerely hope that all your blessings are many. And I wish for a very Happy Thanksgiving to one and all.

Holiday Leftovers Casserole

You can use chicken instead of turkey in this recipe and enjoy it all year long. Substitute one jar of diced red bell peppers for the jar of pimientos, if desired.

- 7 oz. pkg spaghetti, broken into 2 inch pieces
- 2 cups chopped, cooked turkey
- ¾ cup diced ham
- 2 oz. jar diced pimiento, drained
- ¼ cup minced green bell pepper
- ¼ small onion, grated
- 10% oz can cream of mushroom soup
- ½ cup chicken or turkey broth
- ⅛ tsp celery salt
- ⅛ tsp pepper
- 1½ cups (6 oz) shredded cheddar cheese, divided

Cook spaghetti according to package directions in a large Dutch oven; drain well and return spaghetti to pot. Stir in turkey and next 8 ingredients; cook 7 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Remove from heat and stir in one cup cheese. Pour into a lightly greased 8 inch square baking dish. Sprinkle evenly with remaining half-cup cheese. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until cheese melts. Serves 4 to 6.

Italian Bread Salad

This is a terrific way to use up leftover bread.

- 4 cups cubed Italian bread, toasted
- 3 tomatoes, diced and juice reserved
- 1 red onion, diced
- 1¾ cup chopped fresh basil leaves
- 1 cup olive oil
- salt and pepper to taste

Combine bread cubes, tomatoes and reserved juice, onion and basil in a large serving bowl. Add olive oil and toss to coat. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serves 10.

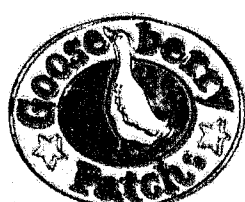

Turkey

-Cheddar-Broccoli Strata

You can also make this in a 13x9 baking dish...just adjust the baking time to 45 minutes.

- 2 cups chopped cooked turkey
- 10 oz pkg frozen broccoli flowerets, thawed and chopped
- ½ cup diced celery

- 6 eggs, lightly beaten
- 2 cups milk
- 3 tbsp all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp salt
- 1 tsp curry powder
- 1 tsp dry mustard
- 1 tsp Worcestershire sauce
- ½ tsp pepper

Grease bottom and sides of 7 (10-ounce) custard cups with butter. Layer half each of bread cubes, turkey, broccoli, celery and cheddar cheese in custard cups; repeat layers, ending with cheddar cheese. Whisk together eggs and next 7 ingredients in a large bowl; pour evenly over cheese, pressing down lightly to absorb liquid. Cover and chill 8 hours. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until golden. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Serves 7.

Get Your Gifts Home for the Holidays

With families spread out all over the country, shipping holiday gifts to loved ones is a part of the season's traditions.

And while Santa has done an admirable job of delivering holiday cheer for many seasons, he often gets an assist from helpers like Bill Yelle, a UPS driver for more than 16 years.

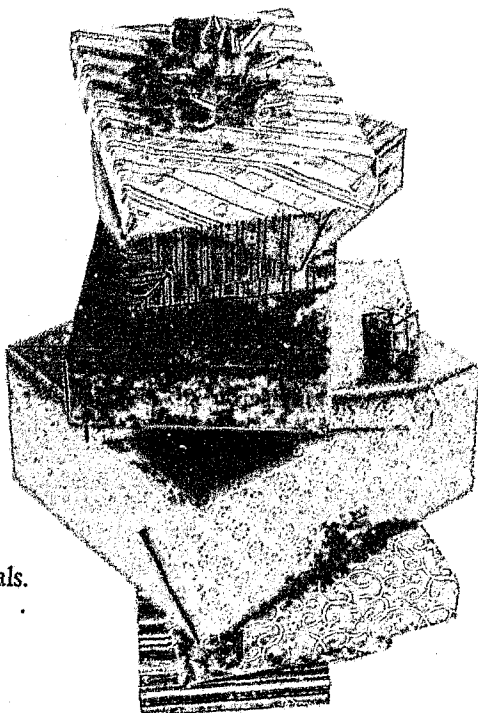

"I might not have a long white beard and wear a bright red suit," says Yelle, "but it's always fun to see the smile on a customer's face when I arrive with packages during the holidays. And I don't want to brag, but I think the children like the big brown truck as much as Santa's sleigh."

To help your special gifts arrive intact and on time, there are a few simple things you can do.

Holiday Shipping DOs and DON'Ts

- DO include an address label on the inside of the package with both the destination and return addresses.
- DO use a shipping option which provides a package-tracking number.
- DO take batteries out of toys, electronics, etc., before shipping.
- DO ship wrapped presents ahead to your destination, especially if traveling by air.
- DON'T wrap boxes in brown paper or tie with string.
- DON'T use materials like newspaper or real popcorn to cushion items.
- DON'T use old boxes or gift boxes for shipping items.
- DON'T use duct tape, masking tape or cellophane tape to seal your boxes for shipping.
- DON'T ship perfume or cologne since they are considered hazardous materials.

For more packing tips and to find a The UPS Store near you, visit www.theupsstore.com.

Key Dates for Holiday Shipping

Most ground packages require five days or less to reach their destination, but if you're shipping coast-to-coast, it may take longer.

- Monday, December 21 — Ship 3 Day Select® for delivery Thursday, December 24.
- Tuesday, December 22 — Ship UPS 2nd Day Air® for delivery Thursday, December 24.
- Wednesday, December 23 — Ship UPS Next Day Air® for delivery Thursday, December 24.

If you are shipping internationally or to military personnel overseas, contact The UPS Store location nearest you to determine the best date to ensure on-time delivery.

Did You Know?

- This year, there are 28 shopping days between Thanksgiving and Christmas ... but only 19 shipping days.
- Monday is the busiest shipping day of the week.
- The busiest shipping week of the season is expected to be December 14 to 18.
- You can ship as late as December 23 for delivery on December 24.
- Participating The UPS Store locations offer the Pack & Ship Promise, which reimburses customers in the event a center-packed item shipped via UPS is lost or damaged.*
- You can recycle your leftover packaging peanuts at participating The UPS Store locations.

*Subject to certain restrictions and limitations. Details are available at www.theupsstore.com.

A new electronic sign has been installed outside Telstar High/Middle School. Here, Ivory Currier of Currier Electric works on wiring. When completed, the illuminated sign will display several messages in succession. The $18,000 cash cost is being raised through donations. About $13,000 has been collected so far. Anyone wishing to contribute may contact the Telstar High School office at 824-2136. Prep work for the sign's site has been donated by several area contractors, school officials said.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Saturday, Nov. 21

At 7:30 p.m. Officer Jack Taylor responded to a residence for a welfare check after a relative had been unable to reach the subject. The subject was located.

(Time not available) Officer Jack Taylor responded to a residence for a medical emergency. The patient was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Friday, Nov. 20

At 7:55 p.m. Officer Jack Taylor responded to Route 26 for a car/pedestrian accident. The subject was taken to the hospital.

At 8 p.m. Officer Jack Taylor responded to a local business for a request that a "no trespass" notice be placed on an individual. The notice was served.

Thursday, Nov. 19

At 4 p.m. a subject came to the station to re-register as a sex offender.

At 8:40 p.m. Officer Jack Taylor responded to a local residence for a report of a stolen car. It was found across the street, stuck in a ditch, parked on top of a "No Parking" sign. Neither the car nor the sign suffered any damage. The owner retrieved the car and the sign was righted.

Wednesday, Nov. 18

At 7:50 p.m. Officer Jack Taylor responded to a local business for a theft complaint. A 5-10 male with shoulder-length sandy hair and a brown coat with a hood was seen running out the back door after taking something off the shelf.

Tuesday, Nov. 17

At 5:11 p.m. Officer Bill Britting responded to Route 232 for a welfare check.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists cases reported in the log of adults being arrested or issued a summons in the 10 days prior to the newspaper's publication, but does not include all reports of police activity, such as routine speeding tickets and other civil violations. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

visual, sound, wildlife and other impacts on the area.

The presentation drew many questions, some objections, and some expressions of support.

Questions

Nate Snow wondered about the potential for conservation land around the towers.

"Obviously this project will have a huge impact on a huge swath of land that a lot of people use for hiking, snowmobiling, four-wheeling, and mountain biking, as well as the impact on the views from Bald and Speckled mountains and Shagg Pond," he said. "Is the town prepared to really force the issue and really make something conservation-wise out of this impact, and how would that look?"

Jane Chandler, a member of the Woodstock Conservation Commission, said the commission had been having conversations with Andy Novey, Patriot's project director, and other company representatives on the subject.

"We don't have answers as to what kind of conservation or where the conservation will be, but Andy's been pretty honest with us that the land surrounding the towers — he's going to be able to protect it so we can continue traditional uses," she said.

"I don't believe the snowmobile trail goes under the towers," Chandler said. "I think it goes on the other side of Spruce. But that's an important issue. And there's state land that's going to be looking at the towers. We're looking at all kinds of options that can benefit all of us for traditional uses of that land."

Gayle Russell asked if the project fit the philosophy of the town's Comprehensive Plan, particularly ridgeline development.

"We did not specifically address ridgeline development," said Mary Ellen Gartner, a member of the Comprehensive Plan Committee. "We just didn't go there."

But, she added, "As far as every other aspect of the Comprehensive Plan, I believe this is in full keeping."

Others wondered about the health effects of the power lines running from the towers, and what current energy sources the wind power would replace.

Novey said the health effects would be no different than those of other power distribution lines, and noted that the larger transmission lines usually draw such questions.

As for the existing electricity source that wind power would replace, Novey said that wind projects in this region usually displace power from Canada and New York that is generated by natural gas.

Objections

Some residents and property owners expressed concern about the sound levels and the visual impact of the wind turbines.

The Shagg Pond area was of particular concern.

One man said he had been fishing in the pond "for about 73 years. To look up and see towers while I was out fishing would not be advantageous to me."

Ingrid Erikson said that while the project may comply with town requirements that decibel levels generally not exceed 45 decibels at property lines, the nature of the sound emitted by the rotating blades should be of concern.

Because the sound waves are low frequency, she said, "you almost feel it," like a vibration.

'Part of the landscape' Two people who have lived near wind turbines in the past said they did not see the towers as an intrusion.

Jesper Kruse of Greenwood, a native of the country of Denmark, said the towers are common there.

"They are just a part of the landscape," he said. "I don't think I've ever heard a windmill, and that's in a country that's much more densely populated than Maine."

Tom Hartford, chairman of the Planning Board, said he had also lived near towers, in Texas and Wisconsin.

"Did they bother me? No," he said.

The hearing concluded after an hour and 15 minutes. A straw poll taken on the project showed 18 residents in favor, nine opposed and 9 undecided.

A final plan for the project is expected to be submitted to the board next spring.

by Nancy Brown
The Sudbury Inn won first place at the Great Western Maine Chili Cook-off

held in Waterford on Columbus Day weekend. The cook-off, sponsored by the Greater Bridgton Lakes Chamber of Commerce, takes place annually as part of the Fall Foliage Fun Run, which raises money for the Tony Waldeier Scholarship Fund. This year the Sudbury Inn won both the Judges' and People's Choice awards. Chef Peter Bodwell says the prize-winning chili is the same basic chili that is served at the Suds Pub.

Innkeeper Scott Davis says that Bodwell is the "best chef in western Maine." His praise is evidenced by the numerous awards and recognition that Chef Bodwell and the Inn have received. In September the Sudbury Inn won first place in the "Chowdah Cook-off" in Bethel. Chef Bodwell has also been recognized by Bon Appetit magazine for his roast duckling with maple syrup and wild blueberry glaze. Bon Appetit recommended the Sudbury as "the perfect way to end a day." The two "Chili Pot" awards are on display at the Sudbury Inn's front desk, along with the "Chowdah Pot" award for the first-place finish in the "Chowdah Cook-off."

Avery Angevine hosted an early Thanksgiving dinner for his family on Nov. 22 at the Sudbury Inn. Twenty-seven family members enjoyed the turkey dinner.

Recent guests of Avery Angevine were his granddaughter, Michelle Billa and her son Nick Billa of San Diego, Calif.

Florence Morgan is recuperating at her home in the Sudbury Village following surgery at St. Mary's Hospital in Lewiston. Guests during Thanksgiving week were her son Ray Morgan, his wife Mary, and their son Christian, of Bluffton, S.C.

Ray Cole celebrated his 83rd birthday with his family on Nov. 20.

TWO LOCKE MILLS houses were destroyed by fire last week. Greenwood firefighter Jeff Tyler was arrested for arson the same day, and later admitted to starting the fire. Both homes were more than 100 years old. Blaine Mills of the Greenwood Historical Society provided these photos, and the following information: TEBBETS HOUSE (left): This place was built by John G. Tebbets sometime between 1870 and 1880. After J.G. Tebbets retired from the mill, his son, Eugene L. Tebbets and family lived here for a few years before removing to Auburn. Over the years, a number of families have lived here. They include King Bartlett and family; Mrs. Powers; Jake Robinson and family; and Mellen Kimball and family. HOUGHTON HOUSE: This place was built between 1857 and 1863 by Moses Houghton. The Houghton family had left Locke's Mills by the mid-1860s. We have no record of who lived here for the next 10 or 15 years. By 1880, Albion G. Woodsum and family were living here. By 1895, Charles and Mary Bartlett owned this place. Next, the Bartlett's daughter, Bertha, and husband, Owen Davis, lived here for many years. Bertha died around 1954 and several years later, Owen Davis sold out to Willard Farwell. The Farwells sold to Stephen Seames around 1981. Mr. Seames sold out sometime before 1990 to Bruce Corners from Massachusetts. Since then it has served as a vacation home or rental.

Gilead

by Lin Chapman

Even though there was a lot of rain last Friday, the weekend turned out to be quite nice. On Saturday, we drove over to check on the progress of the removal of the old O. B. Brown barn. The frame is still there and each beam is marked to be ready for the move.

My brother, Steve McLain, and I were discussing feeding the birds this winter. He was fixing his feeder and getting ready to put it back up. Some time last spring, a bear, most likely, pulled down his feeder, so he took it in.

Hugh and I went to Tim and Michele's for an early Thanksgiving Dinner this past Sunday. Besides the grandchildren, William, Annie, Ajay and Sidney, Michele's parents, Leo and Ann Croteau, were there. Tim and Michele's friends, Brad, Leslie and their son, Nate, were also there for dinner. After a delicious dinner, we celebrated Annie's birthday. She turns 7 years old on Nov. 30.

The Maine Army National Guard recently announced promotions. Jarrod Crockett, the son of Aline Dupont and the grandson of Gerard Dupont of Gilead, was promoted to the rank of major, Joint Force Headquarters.

Belated birthday wishes go out to Gerard Dupont who had a birthday on Nov. 11.

Hugh and I have been working on the newsletter for the Gilead Historical Society.

We include a column titled "Notes from the Past." They are interesting little clippings that were saved from the 1960s. While we were looking through them, we found an interesting one on birds. Since the only birds that seem to be coming to the feeder these days are chickadees, I thought this column was cute. This is just a couple of paragraphs from the clipping: "There is something about the little, black capped fellow that sets it apart. Bright, sunny day or raw and windy nimbus shaded day, the chickadee is cheerful and friendly. The chickadee does not compete with the oriole or scarlet tanager in dress, although its black, gray and white cloak is in impeccable taste. Black cap does not journey southward when autumn's briskness changes to the cold of approaching winter. Through the spring and summer it has kept to the woodlands. Now it comes around the farmstead searching for food in the bark crevices and grateful for the sunflower seeds in the feeder by the kitchen window. A chickadee is a socially minded bird. When a man is chopping wood the birds come around and chant their songs. A winter in the northland follows the traditional course. Snow and ice, tempests and sleet, zero spells and thaws are expected. The chickadee takes them in stride and rides out bad weather in hollow limbs. And when a storm has blown itself out, the birds are back, debonair, courageous and full of song. A man, looking at the bleak landscape these days takes heart from his small friends."

West Bethel

by Lorrie Hoeh

We were treated, one day last week, to a visit by a big flock of goldfinches, garbed in their rather drab winter plumage. Alas, they stayed only briefly and haven't returned since. Still very few chickadees and their cousins, the nuthatches and titmice, come around. However, the jays, doves, and woodpeckers continue as regulars.

Last Friday we measured 1.3 inches of rain here at the Hoehstead. Once again, the East Branch was lapping at the road's edge and overflowing its banks behind our house. Just imagine if that had been snow!

Speaking of snow, the Gould cross-country ski team went to Quebec last weekend in search of it. Word is that they found a place that has snowmaking capacity, so they were able to do some training. Of course, they had a chance to practice some French when they ventured into Quebec City for fun and food.

The congregation at the West Bethel Union Church had a pleasant surprise when their former pastor, the Rev. Earl Bell and his wife Marilyn, popped in for a visit. They now live in the Niagara region. Everyone was happy to see that they seemed both well and contented.

An e-mail from all-Doyle's Services contained the following information:

durance, stamina, strength, power, speed, flexibility, agility, accuracy, balance, and coordination. We hope to encourage a passion for fitness in your child's life while we have some fun. A great way to prepare for ski season! All levels of experience are welcome. Each child will track his/her own progress.

Enrollments are being taken for Tuesdays and Thursdays in December, with classes to run in four-week sessions. For more information, call Deb Doyle at 357-0275.

Senior Citizens were once again treated to a pre-Thanksgiving feast at Telstar High School on Sunday, hosted by Telstar's National Honor Society. According to one guest, the house was packed, and the student hosts were, as always, gracious, pleasant, and helpful. One of the movers and shakers behind it all was (no surprise!) Nancy Grover, and her homemade rolls were among the favorites of the day.

Mike and I will be enjoying Thanksgiving dinner with our daughter, Martha Siegel, and her family over on Shamrock Road. Also on the scene will be our daughter, Kate Griffin, her husband, Ken, and sons Owen and Robbie. The Uber-Thompsons of Boston and the Flat Road will join us for cocktails and munchies before returning to the Flat Road for dinner with their long-time friend and neighbor, Monique Monroe.

Saturday night and Sunday afternoon the Senior College Players presented their fall program to full houses. The audiences laughed a lot and seemed to enjoy themselves thoroughly. We certainly had fun doing the plays and were grateful for an appreciative reception. Watch for Senior Players at New Years Bethel!

Remember to count your blessings as you enjoy your dinner on Thursday. We have much to be thankful for: three wonderful daughters and their equally wonderful husbands; six bright, beautiful/handsome grandchildren; reasonably good health; good friends; food on the table and a comfortable roof over our heads. What more could we ask? Happy Thanksgiving to all!

Hanover

by Clem Worcester

Seems like we got some of our information mixed up again. Last week we reported that Andy Barlow was a successful hunter. That was wrong because the deer thought to be Andy's belonged to Mike Brown. Among others getting deer this week was Jeff Watts.

We said the Selectmen's meeting might be interesting and it was. The meeting was on Nov. 17. Gardner Roberts Memorial Library Librarian Peg Susbury attended the meeting and thanked the town for the $1,000 donation to the library to help with operating expenses.

She was greatly appreciative of the Volunteer of the Year award she received at Town Meeting. She said the honor was not just hers but for all who helped the library. The library was granted permission to use the Town Office as winter headquarters for library hours, which will be Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. beginning Dec. 7. The Board also agreed to allow the Library Bees to do volunteer cleaning, repairing and painting in the Community Room at the Town Office.

After a many year absence Hanover will once again have a community Christmas tree. The dedication and lighting will be Dec. 12 in the early evening and will feature snacks and drinks. Town officials, library officials and other volunteers will be setting up the tree-lighting event. If you would like to help please let them know at the Town Office.

We say goodbye this week to former Hanover resident and neighbor Ted Kaulback. He passed away last Friday in Rumford after a lengthy illness.

Next Saturday, Nov. 28, the Craft and Food Sale at Rumford Grange will take place at the Grange Hall in Rumford Center.

Crafters will have items to sell and a light lunch will be offered. Raffle tickets will be available for day ski passes at Saddleback Mountain and Sunday River, gas from Community Energy, food basket, Christmas basket and a cord of firewood from Brian Worcester. The event starts at 9 a.m. and ends at 3 p.m.

A few particularly sensitive people in the area reported an explosion and rumbling sound at 2 a.m. on Thursday, Nov. 19.

One old fellow from Hanover said his windows shook from the 2.5 Richter scale earthquake that was apparently centered near Farmers Hill in East Andover. The rest of us numb heads slept right through it.

Try to have the greatest of Thanksgiving holiday weekend. Stay safe. Remember, "Always alert, never hurt."

Upton

by Laurie Brown

Walter Bean of North Norway won the pulp truck load of fire wood raffled by Telstar's freshman class. Cameron Bouchard of Upton, and the rest of the freshmen class thank all those who bought tickets and invite you to participate in the toy exchange on Dec. 12 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the school.

Upton's newest resident, Logan Magnus Casko, was born Nov. 20 at 6 p.m. He weighed 7 pounds, 8 ounces and was 20 inches tall. Dennis, Cindi, Lotty, and Logan were all home by Sunday afternoon. The nurse told Cindi that she and Logan were both "too healthy" to stay any longer. Lotty loves holding her baby brother. Logan is already sleeping through the night.

The hunters' supper was well attended. Services donated by local people and businesses were auctioned off by Ben French of Portland. Horace (Dope) Goodrum won the raffle for the hand-crocheted afghan.

The Ladies Aid Association welcomed three new members. At least two of them are already working on and excited about the float they're building for the Upton Fun Day parade on Aug. 21.

The Christmas Bazaar will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Nov. 28.

Roger Bernier, Paula, Tess and Anna, all from St. Johnsbury, Vt., spent the weekend with his relatives on Back Street.

The weather has been stupendous for those people who aren't yearning to ride snowmobiles, go snowshoeing, go cross-country skiing or shovel snow.

A pessimist feels bad when he feels good for fear he'll feel worse when he feels better.

James Bernier, a successful boat builder, built a home on Mill about 1880. Recently, my cousin suggested I claim to be a descendent of his since he was one of the town's earliest settlers. I'm not.

However, the suggestion reminded me of a "story" about my father. For a long time, Dad enjoyed claiming he was related to a major league baseball player whose last name was Bernier until he found out that the major leaguer was an African-American and there was no evidence of interracial marriage in his family's history.

1 1/2 year-old Jes Bernier of Mechanic Falls picked up one of her grandmother's undergarments, slung the straps over her shoulders and paraded around the house, proud of her "new purse."

Her mom, Krystal, and her grandmother, Penny, were laughing too hard to think to capture the moment with a camera.

Have a wonderful Thanksgiving. Selah

Newry

by Sylvia Harrington

At 6:10 Sunday morning Eden Bartholomew gave birth to a 7-pound, 6-ounce boy named Lucian Bartholomew Johnston. Eden and Kevin Johnson are very pleased with this new chapter of their lives. They will all celebrate Thanksgiving with the four very happy grandparents: Brenda and Bob Bartholomew of Newry and Linda and John Johnston of Bryant Pond.

Bear River Trading Post is still continuing to sell hunting scents and lures. By Saturday evening, the 21st, a total of 78 deer had been tagged. The largest deer tagged at the Trading Post was a 230-pound, 10-point buck.

Chili is still available at the Trading Post along with coffees and many snacks. Camero materials are now reduced in price. Warm gloves are still available to keep you warm on these chilly mornings. Give them a call at 824-2327 if you have questions.

For information of WVSC trail conditions, give calls to Leon Dunn at 824-3335, Ed Powers at 739-9618 or Brad Wight at 824-2288 for updated information. You may stop by the Town Office to get a list of club members and a season schedule of events from Dave Bonney. Please feel free to join the club at that time.

Happy Thanksgiving to all. Years ago the day was usually celebrated on the actual Thursday, but nowadays, including with my own family, who will celebrate on Saturday, the day can be honored anytime during the last of November. So— enjoy.

Andover

by Melinda Averill

Hello Andover friends. Nice weather that we've been having.

I guess the days of having a white Thanksgiving are over! During the holidays the TV always has on the Wizard Of Oz.

It's so fun to watch it as an adult and not be scared. My mother tells me that she looked like Dorothy as a youngster (I've seen pictures and she really did!) Anyway, I hope that everyone has a nice Thanksgiving.

On Sunday, Nov. 29, the Recreation Committee will be having a wreath-making social at the Town Hall. Materials will be provided to make one wreath, Christmas music will be playing and hot chocolate will be served. Grab a friend and join the fun.

We have enough material for 20 wreaths, so it would be wise to call ahead and reserve a spot. RSVP to me at 392-2941 or Sue at 392-4691.

Condolences are being sent to the family and friends of Ted Kaulback, of Rumford, who passed away on Friday. Ted and Shirley are friends of the Andover community and First Congregational Church.

Bev Swan and Nancy Wardwell are both home now after several weeks in the hospital following surgery. Bev was at Rumford Hospital and Nancy was in Portland.

Congratulations to Ben and Melissa (Rolfe) Bailey of Turner on the birth of their first child, a daughter, Ziva Grace Bailey. She came into this world on Nov. 16, weighing 7 pounds, 4 ounces and was 21 inches long. Grandparents are Donnie and Barb Bailey of Andover. Maternal grandparents are Mike and Brenda Rolfe of Farmingdale, Maine.

On Sunday I went to Portland and met up with my nephew, Wesley Richardson. He flew in for a couple of hours from Philadelphia.

Enjoy the long weekend, and happy hunting.

Here it is the Sunday before Thanksgiving and the temperature was a balmy 45. I think we can take this weather till it's time to plant peas. Course the ski season would be shot full of holes and I don't know as the good earth could handle any more rain. Wednesday morning sure made the brooks run very angry and loud. They were protesting the amount of water trying to escape to a lower place in the world.

Just a friendly reminder that the 4th of December is right around the corner and needs to be circled on the calendar. It is the evening of the Christmas for Families Bingo at the Legion in Locke Mills. Just remember that we want you to bring everyone along and make us work extra hard for the evening. It sure would be a good time to get out, support an excellent cause, have a good time and maybe win a game or two.

I hear tell that a Curtis grandson bagged a 240-pound, 10-point buck. Sure haven't seen or heard of too much else happening throughout the neighborhood.

The Legion Auxiliary Unit 68 is selling Christmas tree bulbs. They can be bought in "honor of" or "memory of." This is a fundraiser for the Auxiliary and an excellent way to remember or honor someone special. You can see Anita at Bingo on Wednesday and Friday evenings or call 875-2375. Call Jamie Hastings at 674-2540 or Olive Risko at 665-2909. Bulbs are just $2 each.

To my fine feathered little Waterford friend, "the fresh strawberry pie was absolutely delicious and the salmon fillet wicked good."

Sorry if you gave me news for last week's paper, but I was in the hospital at CMMC. Thanks for all the prayers, cards, food and get-well thoughts.

The Ladies Breakfast held last week at the fire station saw 16 ladies have a fun swap of craft material and a delicious breakfast put on by the Monument Enlargement Committee. Next Ladies Breakfast is Jan. 9 at 9 a.m., hopefully at the same place, with a potluck breakfast. Each one please bring a breakfast dish to share. Marybeth Hoover will be showing her artwork.

Services at the Baptist Church are Sunday school at 9:15, morning worship at 10:30, evening service at 6 p.m. Wednesday youth group at 5:30, Thanksgiving Eve Service at 6:30. November 28 Ladies Bible Study at 9 a.m., November 29 fifth Sunday potluck lunch following morning service and afternoon service at 1 p.m. with missionary Tom and Debbie Gibbons updating on their work in Argentina. No evening service.

Judith Grover Tent 17 DUVCW met at the Grange Hall on Monday, Nov. 9. Vicky Myers filled in as secretary and treasurer and Helvi Cary filled in as chaplain. Six members were present. Minutes were read. Thank yous from South Paris Veterans' Home for Halloween candy and Alice Hoyt. Sally Sawyer is awaiting paperwork for a stone for Lester G. Swan, WWI Veteran at Whalesback Cemetery. Sent check to Togus for Christmas. The monument committee put on the Ladies Breakfast Nov. 14. Next meeting is a Christmas party at Alice Hoyt's. Legion had Veterans Day Program on Nov. 11 at 9 a.m. Eighteen calls were reported. Under good of the order Sally read a tribute to veterans. Elizabeth Hoover received the mystery package. The 50/50 raffle the monument committee held realized $135.75 for the monument fund. Michelle Cary received half the money and donated half of what she got back to the fund. Bills paid Grange for four meetings and Michelle's reception.

Franklin Grange 124 met on Saturday, Nov. 14 for a day meeting. Next meeting will be Dec. 5 at 10 a.m. with potluck dinner and Christmas party.

Joseph Hoyt visited his grandparents, Ken and Alice Hoyt, on Saturday. He was at his dad Jim and Charlene Hoyt's. He just got back from Mexico where he was taking a course in kayaking survival or something.

Martha Elkin will be guest speaker at Whitman Memorial Library, Bryant Pond, on Thursday, Dec. 10 at 2 p.m. She will speak on "A Day at School in 1853" from her living history program at Morrill Farm in Summer. There is no charge and light refreshments.

Historical Society
No November meeting was held because of sickness. The Historical Society museum transports you into the world of the past. People, places and things of years ago come alive.

You can explore the records of the late Ruby Emery who studied Woodstock extensively. The society needs the infusion of your enthusiasm and help. Do join soon. Everyone can have a role in the work for the community and area. Come enjoy the programs and research reports. They are interesting and informative. The museum has some good Christmas decorations.

Larry Billings, gave his mother a nativity scene actually made of thimbles. Larry also got a model of the White House for his Cultural Center.

November is coming to a close and the days and nights are getting cooler. Before we know it the S word will be here. To that end we have been splitting (with help from friend Darrel), hauling and stacking wood. I am fast learning not to do too much wood. I may need to go to a gym before next year so I can do wood more easily. In any case, we are getting ready for winter and the holidays.

Thanksgiving is upon us and we have much to be thankful for. We have each other and all our family and friends appear to be healthy. Even Tasha is doing ok. I never thought to see her still this Thanksgiving, but she does well. Hope all of you are doing well too. We are going to daughter Becky's in Norway. That should be good. I love turkey.

There are Thanksgiving dinners all over at churches. Look it up elsewhere in the paper. There is one in Norway and one in Bethel. Friday there is an open mic night at the UU church in Norway. Performers sign up at 6:30. FMI call Heather at 985-4505.

On Saturday the Oxford Hills Christmas Parade will be held starting at 2 p.m. It is called a "Musical Christmas" To register a float call 743-2281.

Do not eat too much and I will talk to you next week.

ITEMS SOUGHT FOR GIFT BASKETS—Melody Bonnema of Bethel is seeking donations of "spa" items and baskets in order to create gift baskets for the Christmas for Families program. Bonnema is already creating her own baskets, using wrapped soaps and other items she has, but has not used. She encourages other people to see what they might have to share, and drop things off at her business, Bonnema Potters, on Main Street. For more information or pickup call 824-2821.

Sharon Hutchins: "Six Who Care"

Sharon Hutchins of Andover was a recent recipient of the WCSH6 "Six Who Care Award" for her community service. Following is the speech she gave in accepting the award:

It is with great pleasure and humility that I accept the Six Who Care award. Thanks to the WCSH6 news team for their work in presenting this award, the United Way of Greater Portland for supporting the program and, to TD Bank Charitable Foundation for the generosity in providing the $1,000 grant to my charity. To Bob and Janet Spidell for presenting this groundbreaking idea, and their support all these years, to Dr. David Murphy for nominating me for this prestigious award, Sue Mills, Dee Field and Jane Rich for their letters in support. To the Edfund board of directors, past and present, for all their hours of volunteerism, attending meetings, brainstorming and problem solving to ensure the continuance of our program, and whose loyalty makes the tough decisions workable. And to the community of Andover, whose efforts and support to make the Hungry Kingdom food program possible. For the contributors to the Edfund, monetarily and emotionally, for your faith and continued support in our program has had a huge influence on the future of Andover's young people. The many colors and shapes of the pieces of the award are represented by each of you. The questions you ask and your notes of support are so encouraging. And finally to my family, whose undying love and support has allowed me to pursue my passion and dream of making the Andover Educational Fund possible. There is no greater gift than to be part of the success of educating young adults of our future. Perhaps we may through continued education be influencing the minds of those who will one day find a cure for cancer, diabetes, the common cold, the next international diplomat, a poet laureate, a Dan Brown, or . . . and the list goes on. To be recognized for the things one does for the passion and pleasure it brings, is truly a humbling experience. Thank you all for this honor.

Western Mountains Senior College

Intergenerational Plays: According to all reports, the two plays, "Trial of Goldilocks" and "Crooked Town," presented at Crescent Park School last Thursday were a huge success. All fifth-grade students from Crescent Park School, Andover and Woodstock participated with the Senior College Players while third- and fourth-grade students enjoyed the show.

Teachers reported that the students said they really had fun performing, and the Crescent Park fifth-graders were especially fond of the "animal masks" they used in the show. Lynn Arizzi, director, said "anytime you can hold the attention of third-, fourth- and fifth-graders for an hour, you've got to be great! The students seemed mesmerized."

Senior College Players also enjoyed interacting with the students. Those performing included: Carole and Ross Timberlake, Joe Arizzi, Rosabelle Tift, Norman Millard, Tineke Ouwinga, Mary Kay Colbath, Joanne Morse, Lorrie Hoeh, Roberta Taylor, Arita Zitoli, Barbara Dion, Karen Paul and Walter Brough.

Plan to see the Senior College Players in comic and serious skits as they present their annual fall performance on Saturday, Nov. 21 from 7 to 9 p.m. and on Sunday, Nov. 22, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the McLaughlin Trustees Auditorium, Gould Academy. With the exception of "A Merry Regiment of Women," different plays will be performed on each date so plan to attend both times and enjoy a weekend of theater. Admission is free but donations will be accepted to offset Royalty fees. For more information, contact director Lynn Arizzi at 824-0080.

Maine Dept. Inland Fisheries and Wildlife

The Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife is reminding hunters who harvest deer, caribou, elk or moose in another state or province to do their part to prevent the introduction of Chronic Wasting Disease in Maine.

This week, 18 caribou harvested in Canada were transported over the border into Maine as carcasses that had not been fully prepared for transportation into the state in accordance with state law. The caribou reportedly were harvested by nine Maine hunters who intended to prepare the animals in Maine. The Maine Warden Service is investigating the incident.

Chronic Wasting Disease is one of a group of diseases known as Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies (TSEs). It is known to occur in mule deer, elk, and white-tailed deer, although other cervids such as red deer, fallow deer, sika deer as well as moose, and caribou may also be susceptible.

CWD is thought to be caused by an infectious protein called a prion that upon entering the body, causes the host's normal proteins to take on a diseased form. These prions accumulate in the brain and spinal cords, as well as lymph nodes, spleen, eye tissues, bone marrow, saliva, feces and urine in diseased deer.

CWD causes irreversible damage to brain tissues in affected animals and ultimately leads to death.

State laws make it illegal for hunters who hunt and kill a deer, caribou, elk or moose in another state or province to transport any carcass parts that pose a risk of containing CWD prions back into Maine. Hunters may return to Maine only with boned-out meat, hardened antlers (with or without skullcaps), hides without the head portion, and finished taxidermy mounts. If still attached, skullcaps must be cleaned free of brain and other tissues.

It is legal for individuals to transport cervid carcasses or parts through the state of Maine if they are destined for other states, provinces, and countries. Transportation is to occur without undue delay and must use the most reasonably direct route through Maine to the final destination. Cervid carcasses or parts must be transported in a manner that is both leak-proof and that prevents their exposure to the environment.

The laws are a result of the fact that no state or province can claim to be free of CWD.

If it emerges in Maine, CWD could seriously reduce infected deer populations by lowering adult survival and de-stabilizing populations. Monitoring and control of CWD is extremely costly and would divert already scarce funding and staff resources away from other much-needed programs.

If you plan to hunt deer, caribou, moose or elk in a state/province known or suspected to harbor CWD there are some commonsense precautions you should take to avoid handling, transporting, or consuming potentially CWD-infected specimens. The precautions include:

Do not eat the eyes, brain, spinal cord, spleen, tonsils, or lymph nodes of any deer.

Do not eat any part of a deer that appeared sick.

If your out-of-state deer is sampled for CWD testing, wait for the test results before eating the meat.

Field dressing: Wear rubber or latex gloves while handling the carcass.

Minimize contact with the brain, spinal cord, spleen, and lymph nodes (lumps of tissue next to organs or in fat and membranes) as you work.

Use a hunting knife, not knives used at the dinner table. Remove all internal organs for proper disposal by burial, or other means that prevents contact by live deer.

Clean knives and equipment of residue and disinfect in a 50/50, solution of household chlorine bleach and water for one hour.

Currently, there is a high demand for CWD testing in states known to harbor CWD. Unfortunately, existing laboratory tests for CWD are expensive, time-consuming, and they can only be performed at a small number of federally approved labs. Although our system in Maine can accommodate enough samples (less than 1,000) from farm-raised and wild deer to scientifically monitor for CWD, we are not able to routinely test hunter-killed deer in Maine at this time.

Service Notes

Tim Aguilar recently completed basic training and Advanced Individual Training at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. He is one of the U.S. Army's newest Combat Engineers. Aguilar is a 2009 graduate of Telstar High School and is home to begin preparation for the spring semester at the University of Maine. Aguilar has been accepted into the Honors School of Engineers and will begin classes in January. He continues a family tradition of military service. His great-grandfather, Ernest Angevine, served in the Army during World War II and his father is currently serving in the Maine Army National Guard.

RASOR HONORED
Dick Rasor, proprietor of The Bethel Inn Resort since 1979, receives the Lifetime Recognition Award from the New England Inns & Resort Association for his work in the hospitality industry and service to the organization at their annual meeting this October. Rasor served on the NEIRA's Board of Directors and chaired the marketing committee in the '80s and early '90s and was instrumental in many of the advertising and promotional programs, still in effect today. Pictured with him are Rolfe Hammer and Robert Smith, past presidents of the association.

Newsletter of School Administrative District #44: Andover • Bethel • Greenwood • Newry • Woodstock

Andover Elementary

Gabe Coolidge, a kindergarten student at the Andover Elementary School, puts the finishing touches on his creative tile structure.

Three of Mrs. Sabin's pupils, Bella Simmons, Zach Crosby, and Dylan Duclos with a huge moose at the Maine Wildlife Park.

Pupils at AES were recently treated to a performance by three local musicians: Steve Simmons, Kier Simmons and Pete Coolidge. The trio gave descriptions and histories of a variety of old time instruments and played several tunes.

Mrs. Sabin's class displays pages from a book they wrote following a recent field trip to the Maine Wildlife Park. Once the book was assembled, it was shipped off to the park as a thank you for the terrific work they do.

Crescent Park Elementary

Mrs. Wight's class at CPS are working on a science unit on solids, liquids, and gases. Here students, Krysten Morse, Will Lafamme, and Caleb Moyer are working cooperatively to build a tower using various solids. Also working in a small group, Timothy Frongillo, Max Godomsky, and Ryan Anderson use their knowledge of solids to see how tall they can make their tower using solids provided.

Mrs. Merrill's Crescent Park Kindergarten class and Mrs. Sabin's Andover Kindergarten class have been collaborating via the school's new video conferencing equipment. The students have introduced themselves and shared what they like about school. They have also done phonics instruction and voted on a new letter person. In the future they will share their writing and many other fun things.

Three Classes from SAD#44 took a field trip to Augusta in October. The 70 students of Bethel, Woodstock and Andover visited Old Fort Western and The Pine Tree State Arboretum. They were involved in activities related to their Social Studies and Science Curriculums.

Jerry K's Korner on the Market! (8-legged perspective on Real Estate & Life)
 Greetings! Jerry here! I've many blessings to discuss at this special holiday time... To begin, I'd like to give thanks to all of my wonderful family and friends who always show my brother, Ben, and me nothing less than unconditional love. In addition, I'd like to give thanks to almost all of my fellow co-workers, i.e., just about all of my fellow canine rescuers, almost all of the doggie house mortgagors & loan officers who are an integral part of our team, almost all of the...
 Excuse me, Jerry, but as your sensible brother, Ben, I must tell you it is in extremely bad taste to give conditional thanks, especially at this special time of year. Be grateful for all of your team, not just your special favorites. Especially because if there is a "turkey" or two in the mix, they only contrast the truly great ones, making those who sparkle even brighter! Point taken, Ben. So, as I was saying, I give thanks to all my fellow team players & absolutely all our wonderful clients & customers Mom & Dad have been serving for the last 22 years in our lovely Western Maine community. I give whole hearted thanks to our fantastic neighbors, hard-working politicians & law enforcement officials, all of our over-worked medical staff & town employees, restaurateurs, tireless ski industry representatives, retail workers of every sort & of course, my adorable twin buddy, Ben! Even though, most of us have had a very trying year, my wish is that all of you count your special blessings & enjoy them on Thanksgiving & throughout the year. Happy Turkey Day to You & Yours!

Take the carbon challenge

While enjoying an unseasonably balmy November, it can be tempting to give thanks for global warming; however, most of the effects of manmade climate change will not be so pleasant. Already parts of the world are suffering droughts or extreme weather events like bigger hurricanes or more frequent floods that may be due to the carbon dioxide we've been pumping into the atmosphere since the start of the Industrial Revolution. Even here in Maine, we're likely to see changes in our coastline due to sea level rise and storm events, a change in species of trees and wildlife as cold-weather species move north or die out, as well as changes to our agricultural crops and natural resources that bring in tourists.

Many scientists say that only a drastic reduction in carbon emissions may be able to stem the tide of climate change. While not one of us will single handedly bring about a low-carbon future, each and every one of us can take actions in our own lives and homes to reduce our "carbon footprint" — that is, the amount of climate-change causing emissions our direct actions cause.

The New England Carbon Challenge (<http://necarbonchallenge.org/>) gives us an opportunity to figure out just how much climate-changing carbon we are responsible for and provides realistic options for measures we can take to reduce that footprint. The Challenge is a joint initiative of the University of New Hampshire and Clean Air — Cool Planet (www.cleanair-coolplanet.org/) that works to educate, inspire and support sustained reductions in residential energy consumption.

According to the New England Carbon Challenge website, about half of all climate-warming greenhouse gas emissions come from households through their energy consumption for motor vehicles, home heating, and electricity usage. With the Challenge's Carbon Estimator, an individual can enter some basic household data (such as number of people in the home, gallons of heating oil used, etc.) and get an estimate of the amount of carbon emitted by that household in a year. From there it gives a number of options for reducing home energy consumption and the amount of carbon (and money!) saved by taking those actions.

The New England Carbon Challenge also offers opportunities for communities and organizations (such as schools, businesses, faith-based organizations and civic groups) to get involved and be recognized as leaders in reducing energy consumption, putting these towns and groups on the Energy Challenge Map and providing them with tools, resources, strategies, and support to help households estimate their emissions, map out a plan to reduce these emissions, and chart the community's progress in achieving its carbon-reduction goals.

While not everyone feels compelled to halt climate change, almost no one will say no to saving a few bucks. The New England Carbon Challenge estimates that households that have taken the Challenge are saving about $755 a year in fuel and electricity costs. Now that's worth taking the Challenge.

To sign up your community or organization, or to find your own household carbon emissions and steps you can take to reduce your emissions and save money, go to <http://necarbonchallenge.org>.

Meghan Rothschild didn't think indoor tanning would hurt her.

She was wrong.

UV light from indoor tanning, especially when exposed at an early age, can increase your risk of melanoma... the deadliest form of skin cancer.

That's what Meghan developed when she was 20 after being a frequent indoor tanner since she was 17.

Current estimates show that 1 in 5 Americans will develop skin cancer.

Do you want to be the one... like Meghan?

Indoor tanning is out.
